

Marie Curie Hospice, Cardiff and the Vale

Care, support and advice for you and your family

Our hospice can help you improve your quality of life if you are seriously ill with cancer, heart failure, kidney failure or other illnesses. All our services are free of charge.

Care and support through terminal illness

How we can help

Our hospice is located by the sea, with wonderful views overlooking the Bristol Channel. We provide a peaceful and welcoming environment for you and your family to come in for:

- expert care and advice on how to manage difficulties such as pain or tiredness
- aromatherapy and other therapies to improve your wellbeing
- advice on benefits and other support services
- emotional support services

All our services are provided free to our patients and their families.

We're here to meet your individual needs...

If you have any specific needs, we will try our best to cater to them – just let us know. We can provide:

- home visits if you are not able to come into our hospice
- access to interpreters
- food prepared according to your cultural and religious needs
- a quiet room for you to use for reflection or to pray
- flexible visiting for families and friends

To find out more, please drop by our hospice, ask your GP or contact us.
